Fun For Everyone When They Tee Off This Morning

At 7:30 this morning, professional and amateur golfers entered in the fabulous Bing Crosby Tournament start spraying their shots around the Cypress Point and Monterey Peninsula Country Club courses in quest of some of Bing's gold which goes to the lucky ones who finish near the top. Nothing but good comes out of this greatest of golf tournaments as the gallery is treated to unlimited entertainment by the famous players, weekend golfers pick up countless golf tips by studying the flawless swing of the pros, discouraged golfers get a lift when they see the experts soar way over par (sometimes taking 16 strokes on a three-par hole), and best of all, generous Bing foots all the bills and contributes the proceeds to worthwhile charities. All the youth centers on the Monterey Peninsula are humming with activity because of contributions received as a result of Crosby's Clambake.

A look at today's entries at Cypress Point and the Country Club shows enough celebrities to satisfy even the most critical galleryite as great stars of movies, stage, baseball, football, boxing, military, political, business, polo, auto racing, basketball, television, and even golf strut their stuff around the beautiful Peninsula courses.

For sports fans, at Cypress Point one can trek along with such greats of football as Red Sanders, UCLA's Coach Of The Year, Frankie Albert, Marshall Duffield and Ernie Nevers. If it's baseball you like, you can follow the likes of Bob Lemmon, Vern Stephens, Ralph Kiner and Lefty O'Doull at the cozy Cypress Point course. For sheer entertainment get in the gallery trailing the foursome teeing off at 11:06 which includes Bob Hope, Phil Harris, Jimmy Demaret, and Dutch Harrison.

Over at the Country Club, such great sports headliners as Jerry Priddy, Julie Bescos, Howard Hill, Bones Hamilton, John Weismuller, and Pete DePaolo will be taking their whacks along with the pros. For the frustrated golfers who swing from the port side, there is a fine 5-handicap swinger, Jack Walters, who will lend a ray of hope to those who swing from the wrong side.

Chub Has A New Old Truck; Has To Junk 2 Old Old Ones

Carmel Sanitary District board raised the pay of two employees Monday night and seated a new member, Jim Pruitt. Recipients of the salary boost, $10 a month, were Max Drewien, manager of the disposal plant and his assistant, Melquiades V. Paredes.

Secretary William Satchell reminded the board that he was leaving for Europe April 15 to be gone until September 15, and the board members promised to make a total effort to find a replacement for him. Satchell also informed the board that their bid of $200 for the city fire salvage truck had been accepted, but District Sewer System Superintendent Chub Askew didn't get a chance to beam before Board Member Clayton Neill told him that insurance is costly when you "have a lot of old vehicles for every purpose." Neill wanted to know how many old vehicles Chub was prepared to drop. Chub said he'd part with a couple of them and Neill said he'd send the junk man around.

Neill reported that the city is about to put in a storm drain on Junipero Street between Fifth and Sixth, above and to the side of the sewer. Were those sewers and laterals where they were supposed to be? Chub said he was pretty sure they were but he and Bill had talked it over and agreed that he'd work along with the city street department and see to the laterals if trouble arose. "When Bill hollers, we'll fix them," Chub assured the board. Bill is Chub's brother, Street Superintendent William Askew.

Attorney Selburn Robison said the Carmel Hill Tract on both sides of the High School wanted to annex to the district; it was just a matter of deciding if they would do it by petition or election. The Walt Pilot Tract, contiguous to what used to be the artichoke field south of the Mission is all but annexed, and will be, with the supervisors' formal permission Monday.

More Support For Moving Freeway Out Of Our Backyard

Three more organizations this week gave their official endorsement to the Hatton Canyon Route proposed are a farther-away-from-Carmel alternate to the State Highway Commission's plan for a freeway from Monterey to Carmel River along Highway No. 1.

Some 100 members of Carmel Unincorporated, meeting Tuesday night at Carmel High School, gave unanimous endorsement to the Hatton Canyon Route. Similar action was taken Wednesday by the Carmel Rotary Club, and by the directors of the Carmel Business Association at a board meeting yesterday noon.

Previous endorsements of the Hatton Canyon route have come from the Carmel City Council and planning commission, the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce and the Monterey Peninsula Highway Advisory Council. All recommendations will be forwarded to the county board of supervisors and the county planning commission for consideration prior to the public hearing on the freeway to be held here February 19 by the State Highway Commission.

Carmel Mayor Horace Lyon says that the city council hopes to have an open meeting on the freeway controversy prior to the Highway Commission hearing, though no definite date for such meeting has been decided.

SYMPHONY CONCERT TUES.

The Monterey County Symphony Orchestra, directed by Gregory Millar, will present the second concert in the current series Tuesday night at 8:30 o'clock in Sunset Auditorium.

Soloist will be the young San Francisco violinist David Abel, who will be heard in the Violin Concerto by Tschaikowsky.

Hire A Director, Let Him Decide What The Recreation Program Will Cost, Carson Conrad Recommends

At a joint meeting of the Carmel School District Board, Recreation Commission and PTA Wednesday night, a "raise your hands" vote was called for on the question of the school district's hiring a year around recreation director. Forty-three PTA hands went up for yes. Three innocent bystanders voted no.

On the strength of the hands vote the school board decided to "consider hiring a full time recreation director" at its next meeting, which is January 26, 7:00 o'clock at the High School board rooms.

At present Carmel has a two-months' summer recreation program which costs the school district $11,340; after school sports, shop, clubs and activities at Sunset, and a youth center that is recognized throughout the state as model.

State Recreation Consultant Carson Conrad told the gathering that he was not there to promote a full time recreation director for Carmel but to answer questions, and then answered questions with "I don't know but if you hired a recreation director he could tell you." When audience members tried to get an estimate of possible costs of salary for director and his assistants to supervise after-school play for four schools, Conrad said that the district should hire the director first and let him decide what it would cost to run his program.

In this Conrad was supported by Monterey's Recreation Director, Duke Thayer, who told the board, "You can't get a good recreation director for $6,000, and it's no use expecting him to be part time physical education instructor. Recreation direction is a full time job. Give him a good salary and a good budget and let him go ahead."

When the board asked if the PTA members wanted after-school recreation at the little tyke schools, Woods and River, Thayer said: "You'll want your program especially at Woods and River. My definition of recreation is intelligent use of leisure time. To teach them that, you've got to get them when they're still wetting their pants, keep at them through the grades, and by the time they are in high school they'll be demanding it."

Unincorp Woos City With Pumper And Three Firemen

A proposal by Carmel Unincorporated for a mutual aid fire-fighting agreement with the city was mailed this week to the mayor and members of the city council.

The fire-fighting proposal was drawn up by a three-man committee appointed by the county supervisors to study plans for fire protection for Carmel Unincorporated. Committee members are R. Rolleston West, J. O. Handley and Rolly Belvail.

The letter proposed that Carmel Unincorporated provide the city with an additional pump truck and reimbursement for the hiring of three extra full-time firemen. The extra truck would be owned by the Carmel Unincorporated fire district but housed and operated by the city.

Carmel Unincorporated's proposal will be considered by the council at its next regular meeting, February 9.

Public Hearing On Red Cross Second Petition Wednesday

Public hearing will be held Wednesday, 4:00 o'clock by the Carmel Planning Commission on the Red Cross' request for a use permit to build a work room at Dolores and Eighth streets on a residence lot.

The first petition of the Red Cross to build on this lot was denied by the planning commission on the grounds that further non-residence uses would be detrimental to the area.

In this second request the Red Cross has asked also for permission to change the lot boundaries and proposes to face its building on Eighth Street.

The planning commission, if it follows established procedure, will hear arguments but postpone decision until it meets the following Wednesday.

WOMAN'S CLUB SPEAKER

Carmel Woman's Club has reserved its top program of the 1954-55 club year for its annual open meeting, to be held Monday at 2:00 o'clock.

The speaker will be Ambassador You Chan Yang of Korea, whose talk is entitled Korea Will Ultimately Be United. He will be introduced by Mrs. Rhea Diveley, vice-president and program chairman.

The program is open to the public, men included.

CARMEL CAGERS HOST GONZALES TONIGHT

Plenty of basketball on tap at the Carmel High gym tonight where the visiting Gonzales Spartans square off against three Carmel High squads. In order to give more boys an opportunity to play, a triple-header has been slated for tonight, with the class C lightweights mixing it at 5:45, the B lightweights answering the whistle at 7 o'clock, and the varsities of the two schools going after a league win in the 8:15 game.

This will be the first outing for the Carmel C squad and they may find the competition a little rough as the Gonzales midgets have been to the post several times this season. Carmel's C starters will be a front line of Dick Leutzinger, Chuck Solomon, and Dick Holt with Jack Faia and Bert Macahalig manning the guard spots.

Currently riding a six-game win streak, Carmel's regular lightweight team will be after their third league win at the expense of the Little Spartans. Victors in league play over King City and Morgan Hill, the Little Padres will find the competition a little stiffer against the Gonzales Babes. The visiting lights are equipped with blazing speed, have good height, and have experienced lettermen at four of the five positions. In their last outing, the Little Spartans whacked a good Hollister team by a 32-20 count. Lightweight starters for tonight's league tussle will be Bill McCormack and Ron Huffman, forwards, Mervyn Sutton, center, Jim Konrad and Mark Hildebrand, guards.

Carmel's varsity will be facing a fired-up Gonzales squad which put on a smashing performance last Friday night in upsetting the Hollister Haybalers, 45 to 34. The Spartan varsity has a well-balanced team which likes to fast-break from the opening whistle. A starting lineup which includes four six-footers gives the valley lads good backboard control and assures them a good start on their quick-break attack. Carmel's in-and-out varsity are seeking their first win in league play and must get over the Spartans if they are to remain in contention for the B division first division. Gary Nielsen, Charley Dawson, George Wightman, Mike Mosolf, and Clyde Klaumann will open the action for the Padre heavies but they will receive plenty of help from Dick Ogden, John Farrell, Bob Wise, Dave Castagna, John Zellhoefer and Dave Hunter.

DON ROBISON MAKES HOLE IN ONE ON 7TH AT P. B.

Don Robison of Pacific Grove and Fort Ord, former University of California football star, made a hole in one Sunday, January 9, on the 110-yard, par. 3, 7th hole of the Pebble Beach Golf Course while playing with Frank Brunk, Jr., Berkeley, Jack C. Hart, Salinas, and D. Neigord. He used a 9 iron.

PADRES CLIP JUNIPERO SERRA TWICE

Carmel High's lightweight and varsity basketball teams found the Monterey Serra man-for-man defense to their liking last Tuesday afternoon and romped to a pair of easy victories over the hard-trying Cardinals. The Padre lightweights won their sixth straight for the season as they downed Serra, 41 to 25. Captain Gary Nielsen and his varsity mates posted a 47-30 win over the outmanned Serra heavyweights.

Led by Jimmy Konrad, a stubby hard-driving guard, the Carmel Babes took an early lead and never looked back as their fast break and driving guard plays moved through the Serra defense at will. Ahead, 18 to 12, at the half, the Little Padres increased the margin to 15 points late in the third period and held the advantage the rest of the way. With Konrad's 15 points leading the scoring parade and excellent rebounding and playmaking by Bill McCormack, the Carmel lights turned in their best game of the current season. Mervyn Sutton, lanky lightweight center, tossed in a ten-point effort and was a tower of strength as he controlled rebounds at both boards.

Enjoying a height advantage over the small Serra varsity, Carmel's heavyweights established game control in the first quarter and were in front by a 25-15 margin at the halfway mark. Aggressive ball-hawking by sophomores Clyde Klaumann and Charley Dawson sparked the Padre defense as the red and grey quintet throttled the Junipero offense. Mike Mosolf chipped in with 16 points to lead the Carmel scorers and was ably seconded by George Wightman who meshed an even dozen. Besides scoring well, the lanky Wightman did a professional job of rebounding and blocked many of the shots attempted by the visitors.

Even though behind 40-30, the gracious visitors showed their appreciation of Carmel's hospitality by contributing a two-pointer for the Carmel side of the scoreboard. Slightly confused after taking an inbound pass, Andy Nottenkamper, Serra guard, calmly dropped the ball through the basket at his end of the court to give the Padres a gift two points. This is getting to be a habit with Carmel opponents as a Palma player exhibited the same generosity in last Friday's game.

Telephone man gets 20-year service pin from air line. Since 1931, Pacific Telephone Switchboard Installer Jim Bailey, left, has worked on most every telephone job at United Air Lines' San Francisco office. The people there say they've become so used to Jim's good work and quick smile that they think of him as one of their group. As a result, they recently awarded him one of their 20-year employees' service pins. We believe Jim's pretty typical of all telephone installers. For your "Telephone Man" works to do the best possible job, to bring you the good low-cost service you like . . . and does it with a smile. Pacific Telephone works to make your telephone a bigger value every day.

The Needler

Wonder how many people automatically thank the tape recorder after dialing 2-8900 for the time?

John McAtee returned from the New Year's week end in Sausalito wearing an Alpine mountain climber's hat, complete with feathers and edelweiss medals. Now he has decided to form a local club called The Carmel Horizontal Mountain Climbers' Club with the slogan: "We climb only molehills."

Beware of the local and current telephone gag in which, when you answer, you are told that a Salinas radio station is calling. If you are able to identify a certain tune you will win a washing machine, or whatever. Then, a record is played over the phone and it is some old number that anyone could name. A certain Carmel housewife fell for the gag and both she and her husband were so pleased at winning something that they went out for dinner that evening in general celebration. The next day she told friends about it and received the doleful news that many others had had the same experience. One person knew for sure that this particular radio station did not have giveaway programs and told the would-be heckler to scram.

How many of you remember the mythical Lily Laguna who sang that marvelous paisano version of Casey Jones and who contributed to literary history, as well, with her own idea of how the Midnight Ride of Paul Revere REALLY happened? She was Beth Murphy Frellson, now Mrs. Dwight Bliss, who lived in Carmel, up the Valley and down the Coast for many years before World War II. Happened to run into her sister, Mrs. Helen Martin, this week and she brought me up to date on Beth's latest activities. She and her husband are running a successful farm outside of Santa Rosa and loving every minute of it. They visited here over Christmas but had to dash back north because one of Beth's cats was expecting. Beth, those of you who don't know her might imagine, is a wonderful sort of legend around here and there is never a dull moment while she is around. During the war she joined the WAC and was sent to England. There, she did confidential secretarial work in a bomb shelter which had a foot or so of water on the floor. This brought on an attack of painful and crippling arthritis, so she was returned home on a troop transport. Her disembarking at New York harbor was a wondrous thing to see, I'm told; for while she was being carried down the gangplank on a stretcher she had her guitar with her and was singing lustily one of her lustiest songs. I'm told she is very happy up on the farm, but, darn it, we miss her here!

Carol and Bill Brown, back from a week at their Tahoe cabin, report that on two nights they had zero weather, but as soon as the heavy snowfall began the thermometer climbed to around thirty degrees. However, their long red woolies kept them comfortable and they hope to make at least one more trip up there before the snow melts in spring.

Discussion of the proposed rest room for Carmel Beach at the city council meeting last week reminded me, for some reason, of the Virgil Partch family, when they all lived up the Valley a few years ago. Their septic tank system had gone awry and when the workmen, with pickaxes, removed the cement covering they found not one tank, but two. "Why," I exclaimed, "Would anyone want two septic tanks?" "It's very simple," replied Virgil seriously. "His and Hers."

Rhea Diveley Has Found A Place Where They Love Americans

Rhea Diveley, the First Theatre's director, is back from a three-months trip to Africa, and convinced that it's "the only place in this wide world where the people really love Americans."

In any case, they apparently loved Rhea. People casually encountered during her travels in Africa snowed her with invitations to visit them, come to dinner, and "tell us about America." "I've never found people more charming or hospitable," she says.

Another surprising, and to Rhea, gratifying aspect of the trip was that during the whole tour she encountered only 10 other Americans. The people she did see were English, Afrikanders and natives. In the major cities of South Africa which she visited—Durbin, Johannesburg, Capetown—her principal interest was the theatres. She visited a number of them, met their directors and staffs, found the theatrical activity considerable and fascinating.

Away from the cities, the fascinations were of a different sort. Of some of the native villages she visited in the course of her safari, Rhea says "It's like going back 500 years in time. You can't imagine people so primitive—or so completely happy—as those tribalized natives." Her only souvenirs of the trip are four crude woodcarvings which she purchased from a native in one of the villages. The safari also took in several of the great game preserves, most exciting of which she felt was Hluluwe Park where the guide permitted his charges to descend from the car to stalk—at a respectful distince—the park's rare black and white rhinos, and where "the air was literally full of leaping animals."

Seasoned traveler as she is, even Rhea wasn't prepared for the tremendous distances involved in a trip to Africa; "I covered 24,000 miles, and when I finished found that I'd only scratched the surface of a little tip of the continent," she says. And though she hasn't even finished unpacking her bags, she's thinking ahead to the next trip. Destination: the Belgian Congo.

Donald Teague, whose self-portrait appears above, is the new president of the Carmel Art Association, which held its annual election meeting Monday night. Teague has won national recognition in the fields both of fine arts and illustration. His paintings have been exhibited in the Metropolitan Museum, the National Academy of Design and the Chicago Art Institute as well as in galleries throughout the west and south, while he has done countless illustrations for such national magazines as Colliers, the Saturday Evening Post, McCalls and American Magazine.

Teague is one of the seven new directors elected Monday night: Frank Myers, Leslie Emery, Myron Oliver, Jessie MacGregor, Abel Warshawsky and John Gratiot. Holdover directors are Sam Colburn, Linford Donovan, Norman McMahon, Doris Rohr, Zenas Potter, Sophie Harpe, Marjorie Doolittle, and John La Pierre.

The complete board, convening just after the general meeting, named Linford Donovan, first vice-president; Leslie Emery, second vice-president; Jessie MacGregor, treasurer; Doris Rohr, secretary; Sophie Harpe and Marjorie Doolittle, co-corresponding secretaries.

Outgoing president Patricia Cunningham, addressing the full membership meeting, gave a general report on the past year's activities, while Zenas Potter, abetted by impressive charts, reviewed the 1954 financial situation. The Art Association, Potter pointed out, made more money last year than almost ever before in its history, with $35,000 worth of paintings sold. The Artists' Ball, plus the auctioning of the mural decorations for same, earned the association over $500.

The board of directors will hold another meeting this evening at 7:30 o'clock at the gallery to appoint committee chairmen and assign members to various committee activities.

Square Dance Jan. 22 For Polio Fund Benefit

Square-dance enthusiasts on the Peninsula have been asked to reserve Saturday night, January 22, for the big Square Dance Jamboree to be held at Monterey Legion Hall for the benefit of the polio fund.

"We dance that they may walk" is the slogan for the Jamboree, first of its kind to be held in Monterey. The American Legion has donated the hall for the occasion, and all proceeds of the Jamboree will go the March of Dimes, whose chairman, Stafford Hughes, has given his wholehearted endorsement to the event.

A dollar admission charge will give dancers a full evening of squares and rounds to a "live" orchestra. Two veteran callers, Bill Castner and Ed Ferrario, have donated their services for the evening. Castner, in addition to being a recording artist, has toured the east and middle west as a caller, while Ferrario is editor of Square Dance Where, the monthly directly published by the Northern California Callers' Association.

The Monterey Taw-Twirlers is the host club for the Jamboree, which is being staged through the cooperation of all square-dance organizations on the Peninsula. Tickets are available locally at the Carmel Paint & Wallpaper Co. on Junipero and Fourth.

Water Color Show . . .

By DORA HAGEMEYER

The present water color show in the Beardsley Gallery of the Carmel Art Association is well worth a leisured visit. Attracting most attention of course is the splendid Donald Teague which was recently the centre of a sales dispute in San Francisco. This picture, Chioggia, which won the Schwabacher-Frey prize, was bought at the De Young Gallery, it seems, for sixty dollars by a woman who had also purchased another picture. The actual price marked on the back was six hundred dollars but there was a thumb-tack covering the last 0. Apparently no one was to blame for the mistake and the buyer finally returned the picture to the Gallery. Whoever purchases this fine water color for its right price will by no means make a mistake. It is painted with the absolute surety of a master of this technique. It is daring in design and with a chromatic sequence stated in broad areas then narrowed to a focus, where the glimpse of boats and water beside a sun-white floor carries out the meaning and purpose of the wide awning.

Grey Earth and Thistle by Virginia Conroy is a strikingly original picture whose brittle intersecting lines convey the struggle of roots, twigs and branches in their efforts to prevail, grasp and exist. Restrained in color it is nevertheless vigorous in design, achieving a kind of subtle root-like strength by means of this exclusion. Nude by Harvey Williamson is a very simple drawing whose long singing lines and flowing form indicate an artist easy with his pencil and sure of his ability to capture the first spontaneous impression. Last Boat by Fred Klepich, on the other hand, is a picture full of varied observations. The threatening sky, the looming city, the little boats setting out, the crisply-painted hill town above the harbor, all contribute to the interest of the whole. Pale Morning by Rip Matteson is painted in soft light colors, whites and cool shadows, a mood of morning familiar to our aqueous air.

Circus Team by Joe Ataide attracts the attention by its difference. A heavy-muscled pair of acrobats, sketched in angular black and white upon a page of newspaper, defy the observer to pass by. The Forest by E. A. Baker with simple wet strokes succeeds in giving a feeling of copious sunlight pouring through the forest forms and directing the attention to their mass rather than to their detail. Dune Grass by E. Cashion Mac Lennan is a decorative study of coarse green sedge and dappled sand, the simple subject elevated by a fine technique. Central City by Sam Colburn is freely painted, high in key and abundant in pattern. View from Huntington Lake is a charming little pastel by Barbara West. Morning in Monterey by Helen Dooley is a procession of rich color on a rough paper, the effect lighted and raised by clean white accents. Sandpipers is a quick sketch of the familiar shore birds by Fred Klepich showing how little it takes to make a picture if that little is rightly defined. Point Lobos Breakers by Frank Myers transfers into the more delicate medium of water color his already distinguished prowess with the drama of sea and shore. Mare Island by John La Pierre is full of fine color and drawing, the lines of industry, high cranes and girders rising from the background as shadowed contrast to the varied surfaces.

The Pinnacles by Elise de Celles Beaton is a sensitive aspect of the massive rock washed in with warm light color defined by ink. Sunflowers by Charlotte Morton is a brush drawing with the light-filled flowers growing up through blue chicory. Hot Harvest by Rollin Pickford allows all the colors of the spectrum to flow into the painting. The kneeling figures, gathering the crop, work in the hot white light. The group of shacks in the background make a picture in themselves.

TO ADAM IN THE TOWER

Silence bugles: time is a tone, my friend;
The springs unwind, and clocks are ever playing;
Strong you hold your trumpet to the wind.

Aldebaran cannot be disciplined,
He flaunts his red where Hyades are raying;
Silence bugles: time is a tone, my friend.

Blue the descended sky flutes in your mind:
Thought leaps forever when the soul is singing;
Strong you hold your trumpet to the wind.

Galactic walls lift snow where they extend,
From pole to pole white-bosomed terns go winging;
Silence bugles: time is a tone, my friend.

Soft the nocturnal cereus has pined:
Let joy dance always, move the heart to ringing;
Strong you hold your trumpet to the wind.

Pendulum and centuries will blend:
Eternally progressive faith is swinging.
Silence bugles: time is a tone, my friend;
Strong you hold your trumpet to the wind.

—OTHELIA LILLY.

TO A YOUNG DAUGHTER

You stand between the springtime and the summer
All fresh and tender with awakening bloom,
Not woman yet, still unconcerned with beauty
Being yourself the essence of its heart.
Strangely complete though timed for quick transition
From simple childhood to an age complex,
You move among the duties of the morning
As though there were no future and no past.

You have an April-swiftness of expression,
You shake away the suddenness of tears,
You do not care how long they stain your face.
O may the summer with its fuller vision
Bring you the selfless radiance of the rose
And keep unspoiled the innocence of Spring.

—VALERIE GOUGH.

LOCKED WITHIN

There is no heat, no driven wind or rain,
That can withhold a final, friendly door.
Weary of gathering or threshing grain,
A man may rest at twilight from his chore.
But only during travail will he know
A brief surcease of weathers locked within,
Which, when he is quiescent, start to flow
Remorselessly into the conscious bin.

How can one narrow heart contain the storms
That come and go from known or unknown sky,
One cortex yield the fibre of mingled forms
Whose roots unfathomably in aeons lie,
Keeping each man, forever, doomed to dwell
Imprisoned in a tiny, terrible cell?

—LORI PETRI.

BRIGHT TRANSCIENCE

Now, in this incandescent instant
A fakir's fiery rope is flung to the sky
As lightning escapes from limbo
In the lull before doom.
This is the incandescent silence
Of Icarus before Lucifer-crash;
Bright transcience into thunder
And infinity.

—EDITH LODGE.

NEGLECTED NOVELIST

William Hale White, the nineteenth-century civil servant who wrote six remarkable novels under the pseudonym of Mark Rutherford, is the subject of a recent full-length critical study by Wilfred Stone, assistant professor of English at Stanford University. Religion and Art of William Hale White has just been published by Stanford University Press.

Born in 1831 in Bedford—one of the greatest strongholds of Puritanism to be found in England—Hale White grew up in a "decayed Calvinist" atmosphere. As a young man he moved to London to study for the ministry, but soon the school authorities detected a heretical bent in his opinions, and he was dismissed from the school and the calling.

This crisis was the beginning of Hale White's lifelong "wanderings in the wilderness of unbelief"—his struggle to find an acceptable answer to the meaning of existence. Dr. Stone traces his transitions from Calvinism to Liberalism, theism to humanism, orthodoxy to heterodoxy, and, further, relates his personal struggle to the temper of the Victorian times in which he lived.

Hale White did not begin writing "fiction" until he was more than fifty years of age, and when he did so he hid the act from the attention of both the public and his immediate family. His daughter did not know he was a novelist until after she was twenty-one years of age; his first wife never knew it.

Each of the six novels is discussed in detail—for what they reveal of Hale White's inner life, his relationships with his family and with such friends as George Eliot, and for their excellent and individual style. A chapter is devoted to Hale White's study of Spinoza and his translation of Spinoza's Ethic.

Chiefly, Dr. Stone's aim is "to introduce an author of real excellence whose merits have too long gone begging for serious critical recognition; to study the transitions and tensions of the nineteenth-century milieu in which he found himself; and to examine the biographical facts that help to elucidate his writings — fictional, scholarly, and self-confessional."

Wilfred Stone received his B.A. and M.A. from the University of Minnesota, his Ph.D. from Harvard, and has taught at all three universities. After a wartime experience as a Navy command pilot, he worked as assistant editor of the Newport-Balboa News-Times in Newport Beach, California, then as editorial assistant at the University of Minnesota Press.

In 1946 he was awarded a Rockefeller Regional Writing Grant, and in 1949 he went to England on a Fulbright grant to do research for Religion and Art of William Hale White. He has recently completed a year at Harvard on a Ford Faculty Fellowship, and has returned to his position at Stanford on the English faculty.

CALIFORNIA'S MAMMALS

More than 200 California mammals, from the immense blue whale to the five-inch-long dwarf shrew, are described by zoologist Lloyd G. Ingles in Mammals of California and Its Coastal Waters, recently published by Stanford University Press.

This publication by the head of the life science division at Fresno State College (California), is a revised edition of Mammals of California, which has been widely used as an introduction to California wild life for the student and as a reference handbook for the professional since it first appeared in 1947.

Numerous additions and changes have been made in the present edition, which has been titled Mammals of California and Its Coastal Waters because of the greatly expanded section on whales, dolphins, porpoises, and other sea mammals.

Conservation On The March

A Weekly Column by
C. Edward Graves
Western Representative,
National Parks Association

In last week's column I discussed the effort that is now being made to dismember Olympic National Park so that a portion of the magnificent and unique rain forest that was one of the main reasons for the establishment of the park might be available for lumbering operations. A somewhat similar situation exists in the State of Oregon where an effort is being made to reduce the area of the Three Sisters Wilderness Area near Eugene by some 50,000 acres. Conservationists in this part of Oregon have banded together in an organization called Friends of the Three Sisters Wilderness Area to oppose this effort. They are, however, willing to compromise to a certain extent and the disputed portion has been narrowed down to about 11,000 acres.

It is expected that a public hearing will be held in March on this issue. The U. S. Forest Service is making this proposal and the conservation groups are opposing the wishes of the Forest Service. Perhaps one sentence from a statement put out by the conservationists will explain why the Forest Service is backing the plan: "Naturally the Forest Service as a public agency is sensitive to the demands of powerful interests who cry that too much of the nation's natural resources are 'locked up'."

The similarity of arguments in this case to those in the Olympic National Park case is striking. Space is not available in this column to list them all. The main argument always is that if the forest is made available for cutting, it will extend the economic life of the surrounding community and that in any case mature trees should be cut and not allowed to fall and decompose.

In each case conservationists answer that it would be a comparatively small extension of economic benefits and of a temporary nature only. After a very short time the old problems would come to the fore again and would have to be served in some other way, such as elimination of waste and better utilization of the smaller growth in commercial forests. They also add that the intangible values of standing primeval forests in such small areas as those under discussion are much greater than any temporary economic value that would come from cutting them.

Mr. Fred M. Packard, Executive Secretary of the National Parks Association, read a very thoughtful paper on the latter subject at the Fourth American Forestry Congress in 1953. He concludes with this statement: "It is the responsibility of the professional forester, who controls much that is done on the land, not only to perpetuate potentiality for the production of timber and forest products, and to eliminate the still enormous wastage of present practices, but also to evaluate our virgin forests for these other values that contribute immeasurably to the welfare of our people."

both by Eleanor T. James, the latter being a study in closely-held color, full of the mystery and dignity of shadow. This is the first of the small water color group to the left of the screen, the other contributing artists being: Russell Swan, Laura Maxwell, Joe Ataide, Ferdinand Bergdorff, Thomas McGlynn, E. Cashion Mac Lennan, A. G. Warshawsky, H. Landaker, E. M. Heath, Lillian Grace Paca, Ida M. Curtis, Anita Wainwright, George Seideneck, Charlotte Morton, Fred Fischer, Marjorie Pegram, Alfred Wands, Elise deCelles Beaton, Virginia Curtis, Sam Harris, Polly Brubaker, Ann Barretto, Edna Richard, Dorothea Francis. At the outside entrance is a little flower study of cistus by Jessie MacGregor, so delicate and transparent in feeling, so silky of texture that it deserves attention all by itself.

In the foyer will be found excellent portraits by A. G. Warshawsky, Leslie Emery, Linford Donovan, Sam Manning, E. Hay, Sam Harris, Florence Lockwood, these completing a January show which should not be missed either by villager or visitor.

H.S. French Class' First Mardi Gras Ball Big Success

The Mardi Gras Masked Ball at Carmel High School Friday ushered in the Carnival season which the French people celebrate until Lent. The French Club transformed the cafeteria into the Vieux Carre at New Orleans, with huge mural paintings made by Terri Otterson, Sandra Six, Judy Paplow, Robin Burnham, Sandra Smith, Libby Downer, and Lucy Carmalt. Refreshments were punch and a Galette des Rois, a large cake with a favor hidden in one piece. Merle Pittman found the favor, so he was crowned King, and his partner, Julie Paddock, was Queen. They led the grand march, during which the judges, Mrs. Dave Davis, Mrs. Matthew Beaton, and Mr. Warren Edwards, selected the winning costumes. For the best couple, Linda Malis and Harry Baxter won the prize; best boy, John Thompson, and best girl, the French Club President, Bonny Lynn Redhead. After the grand march the dancers unmasked: Some of the disguises were so clever that no one recognized their friends until the unmasking. Bonny Lynn Redhead was general chairman, assisted by the people mentioned above, and by Karen Rice, Linda Teague, Priscilla Swanson, publicity chairman, Meiad McDonough, secretary, Roger Newell, vice-president, Frank Palms, treasurer, and Bruce Newell. All members contributed to the refreshments. Terri Otterson and Sandra Six made a large pinata, which the King broke with a baseball bat, showering the dancers with bonbons. Don Rowe, Roger Newell and Linda Teague auctioned the beautiful posters made by her father, Donald Teague, for the benefit of the fund that the students are raising to bring a foreign student to Carmel High School next year. The party was such fun that it may become a tradition.

Raker Baby Christening

Unless the Sierra blizzards prove too formidable, the Peter Ferrantes plan to fly to Reno this weekend to be on hand for the christening of Mary Alice Raker, 10-months-old daughter of the Don Rakers (Mary Street). Mr. and Mrs. Ferrante will be godparents of the baby, who was born last April. Mary Alice is the first granddaughter of Webster (Toby) Street, who had also hoped to be on hand for the christening event.

The Ferrantes hear from their daughter Ann that she enjoyed thoroughly her first Christmas in Alaska. Ann and her husband, John Bourquin, are cosily settled in an apartment home in Anchorage, not far from Camp Richardson, where John was assigned following his graduation from the Army Language School. They'll probably remain in Alaska until next fall.

Bolters Celebrate Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Bolter, who recently established their permanent home in Carmel, observed their 40th wedding anniversary Monday evening. Participating in the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sandness, who joined the Bolters for anniversary dinner at La Playa and later for a quiet evening at the Bolter home on Twelfth and Camino Real.

While the Bolters moved here permanently just three months ago, they've had their roots in Carmel for many years. They have been frequent visitors here over the past 17 years, have owned a lot in town for nearly that long, and built their home here nearly five years ago. And like true-blue Carmelites, they want to see the town stay just like it is.

The Bolters formerly lived in Vacaville, where Mr. Bolter was in the insurance and real estate business. Following his retirement, the business was taken over by their son, Homer Bolter, Jr. They also have a daughter, Mrs. Arnold Collier, who lives in Dixon, near Vacaville.

Hatlos' Open House

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Hatlo will hold their traditional Crosby Tournament open-house for golfers and other friends Sunday afternoon at Wit's End, their home on the Pebble Beach fairway. This year the Hatlos are expecting around 100 guests for their party, always a high point of the tournament's social rounds.

Houseguests at the Hatlo home over the weekend will be Mrs. Margaret Carroll, visiting here from New York, and Miss Dolly Bonetti of San Francisco. Host Jimmy will probably be doing some traveling of his own shortly; he's due to leave on his annual trip to the east in a week or two.

DRIVE-IN CELEBRATES EIGHTH ANNIVERSARY

The Park Drive-In Restaurant on Fremont Avenue in Seaside this week celebrated its eighth year of business on the Peninsula by introducing, as a new special, "chicken in the basket."

This drive-in was the first on the Peninsula and it was the dream of four young ladies who came to this area with a small amount of capital, big ideas and lots of energy.

They are Pearl Carper, Aileen Newell, Ruth Young and Kay Hoff, and though none of them had been in the restaurant business before that time, they made a study of the situation and were an immediate success. All four had been connected formerly with the Oakland Y.W.C.A.

W. C. Farley Visiting

Renewing auld acquaintances around town this week is William C. Farley, who arrived Wednesday for a visit with his brother, Harry Farley. A Carmel old-timer, W. C. Farley in 1924 founded the first dry-cleaning business in Carmel.

Having travelled quite a bit from place to place since leaving Carmel, W.C. now lives in Brownsville, Texas, a sunny town on the Gulf where his daughter, Henrietta, and her husband Fred di Stefano also make their home. On Monday, he plans to leave for a visit with family in Washington, but will stop by Carmel on his way back home.

Donnellys Entertain Golfers

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Donnelly, Jr., will entertain at a small dinner party over the weekend in honor of several friends visiting for the Crosby Tournament. Among the Donnellys' out-of-town guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Henry McIntyre, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Winters and Joseph Parker, all of Palo Alto, who will be staying in Carmel over the big weekend.

HONORED AT BANQUET

Msgr. Michael D. O'Connell, pastor of Carmel Mission since its revival as a parish in 1933, and Harry Downie, who has collaborated with Msgr. O'Connell in the planning and execution of the Mission's restoration, were honored Wednesday night at a testimonial dinner held at the Naval Postgraduate School.

Over 700 persons were present for the dinner, which was presided over by Carmel Martin of Monterey. Principal speakers were Msgr. O'Connell and Mr. Downie, and the Rt. Rev. Michael Sullivan, representing the Most Rev. Aloysius Willinger, bishop of the Monterey-Fresno diocese.

High point of the event was the presentation of commemorative scrolls to the two honor guests. The scrolls, each individually composed and inscribed on vellum, were designed and lettered by Brig. Gen. Frank Dorn (U.S.A. Ret.) of Carmel, after the style of Medieval illuminated manuscripts. Each is decorated with coats-of-arms and symbols representing the respective backgrounds and achievements of Msgr. O'Connell and Mr. Downie.

LAST CHANCE FOR VINEGAR TREE

Tonight, Saturday and Sunday will be the final performances of Paul Osborn's comedy, The Vinegar Tree, at the Golden Bough Players' Circle. Starring Ruth Marion McElroy in one of the most hilarious roles of her long career as the Peninsula's foremost comedienne, the play has hung up a record for attendance and universal enjoyment. Theater-In-The-Round has again proved itself an unequalled vehicle for intimate production. Lee Crowe's the director.

Mona Williams Has Another Story In Slick Paper Mag.

The January issue of the American Magazine features a new short story by Carmel's Mona Williams, who recently returned home after a brief stay in New York.

Mona received wide recognition when another of her magazine short stories was made into a top-drawer Cinemascope production, A Woman's World, featuring an all-star cast.

Her story in American Magazine is entitled The Man Who Understood Women, a light romantic piece concerning a know-all male who failed to practice what he preached concerning the fair sex.

Author Mona is the wife of fellow writer Henry Meade Williams and mother of Karen Williams, talented local actress.
